Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Friday 19 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunny spells in the west. Cloudier elsewhere.

Today:
It will be cloudy and rather dull across the north and east, including the Northern and Western Isles, perhaps some patchy light drizzle. The best of the brightness across the west with some sunny spells.

Tonight:
Mainly dry with the best of the cloud breaks developing through more central and eastern areas. The most extensive cloud across the north and northwest with some mist and drizzle.

Saturday:
Much of the mainland should see bright or sunny spells, the best of the sunshine in the east and feeling quite warm. However, mostly cloudy in the north and west.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Staying mostly dry and settled although rather cloudy at times, best of the brightness in the east. A little rain across the north and west. Feeling pleasant in any sunshine.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.